

Plasma cutting technology allows the cutting of large and thick elements of sheet steel.

This type of cutting is frequently used for large steel structures.